Burgau, a small town in the western Algarve, was once a fishing village. Nowadays it lives mainly from tourism, its most notable attraction being the small beach of Praia de Burgau, surrounded by cliffs.
The village of Burgau marks the beginning of the Southwest Alentejo and Costa Vicentina Natural Park, which stretches along the south and west coast of Portugal, as far as the Alentejo municipality of Sines.
All services such as shops, supermarkets, schools, public transport, health services, golf courses, sports facilities, etc. are within easy reach. In less than 10 minutes you reach Lagos and Sagres in about 20 minutes.
The international airport of Faro is only one hour away via the A22 motorway
